Barbara, the witch, had a brilliant brain. She had a hat with a brim, a long braid in her hair and a little brown cat.

One night, she needed to bring back some bits for a spell. 'Come,' she said to the cat. 'Get on the broomstick. We are going to Brighton!' When they got to Brighton, they went to look for a big brood of bugs.

'Back to the broomstick,' Barbara said to the cat, when they had collected their brood of bugs. 'We are going to Bristol!' When they got to Bristol, they went to look for a bright red brick.

'Back to the broomstick,' Barbara said to the cat, when they had collected their bright red brick.

'We are going to Brazil!'

When they got to Brazil, they went to look for the best brand of brush.

They got back and put the big brood of bugs, the bright red brick and the best brand of brush into the pot. Barbara said a spell and...

POP!

There in the pot was a brisket of beef.

'Dinner!' said Barbara.

'Brilliant,' said the cat.
